The American farmer has found a way to reduce our country's need for foreign oil. The ethanol produced today from our nation's corn crop is bolstering our economy and environment, in addition to protecting us from having to defend our oil interests in the nations of the Middle East. E85 is important to our nation's energy supply, not only today, but for future generations of Americans. We are proud to announce the expanded availability for the growing number of Flexible Fuel Vehicle drivers in the Mid-Atlantic Region.
